I asked my father one day who his grandfather was and he could not tell me—I never heard my father say who his father was, said he—all I know is his mother's name was Rebecca, my father's father must have died when his children were quite small, because my father was apprenticed to a weaver in New Castle, Delaware, when he was about eight years of age and ran away and went to sea. He followed the sea for fifty years—was in the war of 1812 on the Macedonia, under Jacob Jones. This started me on my inquiry. I commenced writing letters to every Whitcraft in and about Delaware—and one day in early summer on a Sunday morning, a knock came to the door and a person inquired—Does John Whitcraft live here? I replied that was my name. I am your cousin Harry, said he. My father received a letter from you. He soon proved to my satisfaction that his father's father and my grandfather were brothers. I said—We will go to Philadelphia and see my father and aunt. My aunt was living in Kensington and, upon going there, in the course of the conversation, she said—John, I have found out for you where Phoebe Loper lives. This Phoebe Loper was an old lady I had been looking for for years as a distant relation of my father who might tell me something about the family history—she lives, said she, on Fawn street, near Fifteenth. So, we took a car and went down town to hunt up Phoebe Loper. After repeated inquiries along Fawn street, we at last found a party who told us this old lady did live there, but had moved to Fifteenth, and was living with a cousin, Mrs. Abbot.

We found Mrs. Abbot, who said that Phoebe had moved to Hancock street. So, we proceeded to that location and, after much difficulty, located the said Phoebe Loper. My cousin said on the way—John, do you believe in fortune-tellers. Why? said I. Well, he said, before I found you I went to one and she told me I would meet a tall man who would lead me on a long chase after an old woman who could tell us about a fortune. Almost the first thing Phoebe said to me was—John, did you see that advertisement in the paper, inquiring for the heirs of Phoebe Rabjohn, to a fortune of some $16,000,000. I said, who was Phoebe Rabjohn; why, she was my grandmother, said she. I asked her how she came to see the advertisement; why, said she, Mrs. Kohler and I had been out to the park, about last November, and on her return she picked up the Item and read it to me, and Mrs. Abbot also read it. Why did you not cut it out, said I. Oh! said she, I told her I was old and the lawyers would get it all; so, I did not bother with it. Where was it located, said I. I think it was in Holland, said she, some place that ends with a dam. Amsterdam? said I. No, said she. Rotterdam? Yes, that's it, she said. So, I hunted up Mrs. Abbot, and she said, yes, I remember reading it to Phoebe. What paper was it in? said I. I think it was the Ledger, said she, although it might have been the Record, because we often borrowed that paper from next door.

Every effort was made to find that advertisement, but without avail; repeated advertisements were put in the papers, but all to no purpose, at least twenty persons swore they had read it.

One woman said, Yes, I remember it, because I had an uncle, Robert John Felon, and I think the lawyer was Oscar Beasley, because I remember one time my husband called on him and, in leaving, took his hat in mistake and this incident came in my mind when I read it.

I at once looked for Oscar Beasley and he said the name was familiar, that it related to wharf property in Liverpool. At another time he said that he thought his partner, Jeitles, had the case, but he was dead, that it was coal lands in Pennsylvania. His papers were so mixed up on account of moving, that he would look further into the matter and let me know; finally he said he must have been mistaken.

Another party swore that he read it in the Sunday Item, that the lawyer's name commenced with a B.

Another man said he read it to his wife, and that name struck him as odd.

Another man said he saw it in the Item, that he remembered it because he used to go see a girl named Phoebe.

Another man said he saw it in the Sunday Press; so it went on, all saw it, yet none could find it.

One man said, I remember it distinctly, because I remarked I would not do a thing if that was mine.

Who was Phoebe Rabjohn and who would be likely to advertise for her, I found she was my great grandmother, my father's mother's mother; so, the thing to do was to find out who were her heirs, and I commenced to look them up. After much search I found out that there were only about twenty living all told.

A trip to England and a visit to the court of Chancery revealed the fact that a Caroline Rabjohn left with the Bank of England certain papers for registration, her husband, William Rabjohn, husbandman of Egg Buckland, died, leaving an estate of some £300. This, then, was not what we were after. I found in Philadelphia a will of John Rabjohn, my great grandfather, naming his ten children; he was a tailor, lived at 229 St. John street.

So, this is how I came to write the history of the Heilighs, or, as they later called themselves, the Harleys, in the hope that someone may have seen the advertisement and could locate it for me.

Phobe Loper died soon after I met her. Mrs. Kohler I saw and she positively declared that she saw the advertisement in the Item. The clerk in the Item office said he remembered putting it in the paper, but the most diligent search failed to find it.

Heindrick Heiligh, Sr., came to this country in 1745 from Amsterdam, Holland, on the ship Peggy, Capt. Abercrombie, master.

He is said to have descended from William, Prince of Orange. With him came his two brothers, John and George, the latter's wife's name was Anna Barbara.

Hendrick Heilig or Heiligh's wife's name was Susanna; he died in 1775, leaving four children:

John

George

Anna Maria and

Susanna

John died April 7th, 1841.

John married, June 28th, 1769, Elizabeth Taney and had:

John and

Jacob

Anna Maria married Michael Slonacre.

Susanna married October 24th, 1769, Henry Taney.

Henry, son of Henry and Susanna Heiligh, married Margaret, issue two children, one named Barbara.

Henry, Jr., died in 1766.

Margaret afterward married a man named Knappenberger.

George Heiligh, son of Henry and Susanna, married, 1st, Sophia Omenzetter, July 14th, 1763, who died February 9th, 1768, aged 22 years, less 9 days; daughter of John Omenzetter and Sophia born February 17th, 1746, at Gosheim, in Dutchy Wurtemberg, came to this country in 1753 at the age of 7 years. Lived 4 years in wedlock to George Heiligh, begot 2 children, was sick 8 months. Her children:

Phillipine Susanna, born September 6, 1764, and George, born January, 1767.

George Heiligh married, 2nd, Margaret Webber, widow, maiden name Anna Margaret Voss. Children:

Jacob, bap. 1771.

Christopher, who died in the Mexican War.

Elizabeth, who married Frances Cooper, maker of the first pipe organ in Philadelphia, afterward a tobacco merchant.

Mary, who married Henry Weaver.

Catharine, who married:

1st, Faunce

2nd, Walters

3rd, Witherstein

Phillipine Susanna, daughter of George Heiligh and Sophia Omenstetter, changed her name to Phoebe, married John Rabjohn, April 18, 1786, in St. Michael's Lutheran Church, corner Fifth street and Appletree alley. Witnesses, John Rabjohn, Sr., and George Heiligh.

John Rabjohn was a tailor by trade, lived at 229 St. John street, between Coates and Brown, died June 15th, 1823. His will is recorded in Book 8, page 45, No. 100, Philadelphia. His father, John Rabjohn, Sr., married Isabella Stuttzen, in 1760, in St. Michael's Church. Witnesses, Edward Pennly, Hugh Low, Isaac Warner and Maria Barbara Stuttzen. He was supposed to be the same Henry Roberjot, Head Bookkeeper and confidential man to Stephen Girard. His children were:

Maria Regina, bap. in 1761.

Zelia, who married Andrew Crostby, a sea captain.

John and Adam.

He married, 2nd, Hannah Wicks, widow, April 2, 1791.

Adam Rabjohn married Mary Weinemeyer January 19th, 1794.

Phillipine Susanna Rabjohn died April 29th, 1826, and was buried, with her husband, in the Baptist Churchyard, in New Market street, Philadelphia. They were afterward removed to Ivy Hill Cemetery, Germantown, where they now rest. They had 10 children:

Sarah

Mary

Frances

William Slonacre died October 20, 1866.

Robert M. Slonacre, father Jared Nyce Slonacre, born July 11, 1800; died 1878; mother Elizabeth Eaton. Grandfather John Slonacre. Great-grandfather Jacob Slonacre. Great-grandmother Margaret Nyce. Uncles, and Aunts Elizabeth Bastress and Mary Horeater.

Cardin, or Catherine, Keyser Jonas—Mark, John Slonacre, brothers, and sisters Isabell Rogers-Garnett; John Slonacre, son of John G., Margaret Gregg.

John Heilig, Sr., parents George and Barbara, born March 4, 1765.

John Heilig, 1736 Beechwood street, Philadelphia, father John, mother Mary Yoos, lived in Neider brom Alsace.

John Nyce Slonacre, father Mark, mother Mary Elizabeth, grandfather John, grandmother Margaret.

John Henry Roberjot died September, 1828, and was buried in Trinity Churchyard, Sixth and Spruce streets.

The American Sentinel gave his age as 66, but I think he was older. He was buried from the residence of Mrs. Greland, 120 South Third street. He left one daughter, Zelia Miriam, who married Andrew D. Crosby.

Andrew Doz Crosby was the son of Elizabeth Magaw, who married a man named Crosby, afterward a man named Thomas Cumpson; her mother's name was Martha Doz, who married Rev. Samuel Magaw; her father's name was Samuel Doz.

Mrs. Robert John Foulon, living in Union street, West Philadelphia, near Thirty-ninth street, claims her husband was named after Roberjot and that his right name was John H. Robjohn; she has often heard the name of Maria Regina spoken of.

This Maria Regina was a sister of Zelia M. Crosby, and John Rabjohn, son of John H. Rabjohn, Sr. It is supposed that Girard called him Roberjot, after the noted Frenchman of that name, who died in 1790, and Rabjohn assumed the name. It is very likely that this is true, as John Henry is purely English and not French.

Mr. Roberjot was one of the refugee merchants from Santo Domingo, who saved valuable papers for Stephen Girard.

Speaking of Girard's profanity when excited to anger, Simpson, in his book on Life of Stephen Girard, says:

Mr. Roberjot was in a peculiar manner the butt of this kind of invective, and generally bore the torments lavished upon him with a philosophical patience, which full entitled him to Saintship, for he frequently had occasion for all the equanimity of Job himself, for all crosses, disappointments, blunders, mistakes and the endless little miseries of country house life were to be fathered as a matter of course by Mr. Roberjot, the friend and factotum of Girard, alternately the substance and shadow of his employer and proverbial for his industry, his attention, and his fidelity to the complicated concerns of the great merchant.

FRANCES WITCRAFT

Mr. Roberts was both by word and deed a true representative of his nation in governing nations.

"Whatever was within his power was called for was dispatched and a valuable service to the nation rendered at one time more than any other man could have done and as another he was brought to the point of the sword and smiled to be engaged in it.

"No idea of dignity could be conceived of his somewhere of universal unity and constant labor.

1st. I order that all and singular of my just debts, funeral and other expenses, concerning me in my state be well and truly paid and discharged.

2nd. I empower and authorize my Executors hereafter named or to be named to sell and dispose of by Public sale or Vendue to the highest bidder, all and singular, my mannges, contents, things and other movables whatsoever which I may be possessed of at the time of my decease. And by my order and deed to make execution and conveyance thereof and wherever need is done at court house or elsewhere in any part thereof to the purchase of purchasers, but not to be sold or conveyed by gift or favor and not nearly or remotely by will and all other my wills whatsoever other last wills being void I declare thereof in manner following, to wit.

I Give and bequeath unto my son Henry Smith the son of Two Hundred and twenty five dollars money of Pennsylvania.

FRANCIS WRIGHT

Mr. Roberjot was both by nature and education a true representative of his nation in genuine politeness.

"Whatever was wanted Mr. Roberot was called, he was dispatched on a frivolous errand, or summoned in solemn council, at one time man important embassy entrusted with millions, and at another he was employed to do what a boy would have smiled to be engaged in.

"No idea of dignity could be preserved in his atmosphere of universal utility and constant labour."

149—Year 1775. (Probably 78 years old.)

In the name of God Amen. I Henry Heiligh of Cheltenham, Township in the county of Phila., in the Province of Penna. Yeoman, being aged and infirm in body, yet of sound and disposing mind, memory and understanding, blessed be God, therefor to be equally divided among them, part and share alike.

Lastly, I nominate, constitute and appoint my trusty friends, John Fry and Peter Bocknis, both of Germantown, in the aforesaid County of Philada. and Province aforesaid shopkeepers, Executors of this my last will and testament truly revoking all for memories by me made, ratifying these presents only for and as my last will and testament.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal dated the Twenty-ninth (29) day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-two (1772).

Henry Heiligh.

Will of Henry Heiligh Jr.

In the name of God Amen. Whereas I Henry Heiligh of Upper Hanover Township in the County of Philada. and Province of Penna., Yeoman, do find myself very sick and weak in body, but of sound mind memory, thanks be to God.

I on this first day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixty six, make and ordain this my last will and testament, and first of all recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God that gave it, and as touching my worldly estate I do hereby dispose of same in the following manner, that is to say, as I have already paid my father, Henry Heiligh, Sr., part of the Consideration for which he promised to me to let me have his plantation where I now live, but in case I should happen to die, and my father should intend to keep or sell the said plantation and pay twenty-five (25) pounds lawful money of Pennsylvania back again, so it is my will and I do hereby give and bequeath unto my beloved wife Margaret the said sum of twenty-five (25) pounds in money as also my cattle and movable house-hold goods and personal estate of what name soever upon condition that she shall sell so much of the same as she may not have necessary for her use and pay all my debts and costs therewith so the remainder I give to her, her heirs and assigns forever, and I do hope and confide that my beloved father will take care and provide for my two children as he shall think fit and right.

And I further recommend my said wife and children to the care and direction of said father and of my brother, George Heiligh and my brother-in-law Michael Sloanacre Jr. to take care and support my said family in the best manner they can. And I do hereby nominate and appoint my said beloved wife Margareth to be the sole executrix of this my last will and testament.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal in the day and year first above written.

Henry Heiligh.

Signed sealed and declared by the said Henry Heiligh Jr. as his last will and testament in the presence of us David Schultze, Johr. Gallman, Wally Graber Philada. June 2nd 1766.

There personally appeared David Shultze and Johannes Gallman, two of the witnesses to the foregoing will and on their solemn affirmation according to law did declare that they saw and heard Henry Heiligh, the Testator therein named sign and seal publish and declare the same will for and his last will and testament and that at the doing thereof he was sound mind, memory and understanding to the best of their knowledge.

Corem—Benj. Chew Reg. Genl.

Be it remembered that on the second day of June 1776 the last will and testament of Henry Heiligh deceased, in due form of law was proved and probate and letters testamentary thereof were granted to Margareth Heiligh, sole executrix in the same will named, being duly sworn, well and truly to administer the said deceased estate and bring inventory thereof unto the Reg. Genl. office at Philada. on or before the 3rd day of July next and render a true and just account thereunto legally acquired, given under the seal of the said office.

Ben. Chew,
Reg. Genl.

Phillipa was daughter of Count William 3rd of Holland. Barbara was the washerwoman mother of Don John by Charles 5th, supposed to be the ancestors of the Heilighs.

About November, 1896, an advertisement is said to have appeared in the Philadelphia papers inquiring for the heirs of Phoebe Rabjohn to an estate of $16,000,000; long effort was made to find the lawyer or lawyers who inserted the advertisement, but without effect. Some ten or twenty persons claimed to have read the advertisement and said the lawyer's name commenced with a "B." This fortune is supposed to have come in one or two channels, either direct from Holland or through Jacob Rabjohn, son of Phoebe, who is said to have died rich, having invested in coal lands in Pennsylvania, with one Jacob Riffert, a brother-in-law.

It is said that Phoebe Rabjohn was descended from a Holland Dutchesse or Princess. That she fell in love with the coachman or butler and they eloped to this country.

Harleyville, Pa., July 25, 1898.

S. M. Mason.

Dear Sir:—

Yours of the 23rd is just to hand. Let me ask are you a descendant of the Harley's, or why do you care about knowing their history, and, second, I would ask what do you know of me and how did you get my name and address so correct? I am nearly blind and the little sight that I have yet is so weak that I cannot read or write more than a few minutes at a time without resting them, and meanwhile I forget my idea, therefore, writing becomes a task which used to be a pleasure, and can't read any more without a large microscope. Under these circumstances it is impossible to do anything like justice to your query. Therefore I will tell only a little of their earliest history. The latter history you can perhaps get from other sources.

"All of the Harleys of America are of German ancestry. They appear to have been a distinguished family in Germany, as there were several Divines and Authors that lived and wrote 200 or more years ago, of whose works I have in my library, but while they did not worship with the established or National religion they were greatly persecuted, so that they were obliged to flee from the country, consequently some fled to England, where they soon became distinguished, as I know of at least one who became a member of Parliament.

"A Robert Harley became Librarian to King George the 2nd and a Thomas Harley who purchased 5000 acres of land from William Penn in 1682. This land was located partly in Hatfield, partly in Franconia and in other townships of Montgomery County. So, in after times some of their descendants emigrated to America, who settled mostly in the Southern and the Western States, who have a right to say they are of English Nationality, but if they would trace their pedigree a few generations back they would find them as German as any in America.

"I come now to tell of the other branch of family of Harleys, who came over direct from Germany, as Germans, to the United States of America.

"The first pioneer of all Harleys of the direct German branch was Rudolph; when or where he was born I do not remember, but he landed in Philadelphia in 1719. His wife was pregnant before they left for America, but they thought sure to reach the shore before the time of her accouchement, but having an unusually long and tedious voyage from contrary winds and many days no wind at all, she gave birth to a little baby boy while in mid-ocean. That little baby boy was called Rudolph, Jr. He was born July 14th, 1719. He had one sister who was married to a Mr. Graff and moved to the then new settlement in the Southwest, where she soon died and left no children that we know of.

"Her brother, Rudolph, Jr., married Mary Becker, daughter of Elder Peter Becker, of Germantown, and had 13 children, 12 of whom lived to a good old age. Their names in English were:

"John

"Joanna

"Lena

"Mary

"Rudolph

"Elizabeth

"Jacob

"Henry

"Sarah

"Samuel

"Joseph

"Margaret and

"Abraham

"As you wish to know their family connection I will give them briefly.

"John Harley was born August 16th, 1741; married a woman whose name I do not remember. They had a number of children, but I know the name of only one, that was Rudolph. They lived in Pikeland Township, Chester County. He had a farm and valuable merchant mill and was at one time in good circumstances, but in advanced age he married his housekeeper, who was a widow and had a number of children, and they yet one together when he was nearly 81 years of age. She was an artful Delilah in providing for her own children. She prevailed on him to sign her a certain writing. He did so when he was quite old. She died soon afterward and by that writing his estate went to her children, leaving him in extreme poverty, with one little child. At that time he lived near Mercersburg, in Franklin County, Pa., where necessity compelled him to go begging.

"Joanna Harley, the second child and oldest daughter of Rudolph, was born April 21, 1743, and married to Hans Ulrich Stanffer, generally called Handley. They also raised a large family, but on account of failing sight it is impossible to give details of all.

"Lena Harley was born May 4th, 1745, and died young.

"Maria Harley was born March 12th, 1747. She was twice married. First to a Mr. Landis and second to Frederick Deal. It is said they had nine children, but their posterity is so scattered that we know but little of them, and the most are in the West.

"Rudolph Harley, 3rd, was born February 7th, 1749; was twice married. First to Barbara Bach and second to Miss ——— Bornberger; said to have had 13 children.

"Elizabeth Harley, born September 9, 1750; married to Christian Dettry. It is said she had 10 children, but I only have the names of seven, namely:

"John

"Isaac

"Zachariah

"Christian

"Abraham, and several daughters, one of whom was married to Holman.

"Jacob Harley, born June 8, 1752, was never married, but lived to an advanced age and then died from the effects of a kick from his horse.

"Henry Harley, born July 1, 1754, was married to Elizabeth, or Betty, Keely. It is said they had 16 children. I have the names of at least 12 or 13.

"Sarah Harley, born June 20, 1756, married Elder George Price, of Coventry. He was the father of Preacher Isaac Price, of Phoenixville; they had 6 children.

"Samuel Harley, born March 6, 1758, married Catharine Saur, or Sower, daughter of the celebrated printer and Elder of Germantown. She had 12 children, 10 of which lived to a good old age. My dear mother was one of them.

"Joseph Harley was born March 14, 1760, was married to Catherine Reiff; no children.

"Margaretta Harley, born September 13, 1762, married a Jacob Detwiler. They had a large family of 10, if not 11, children.

"Abraham Harley was born June 14, 1765, married Christianna Giesz. She was a waif, insofar, at least, that nothing is known of her parents or kinship. She was a very worthy and amiable woman, raised a large and very respectable family of 8 sons and 2 daughters, among them Abraham, married to Katie Reiff. They lived for awhile in Chester County, then moved West, and died at an advanced age in Montgomery County, Ohio. He was a very able preacher in English and German languages.

"His son, Jacob, was a successful merchant at Norriton Square, below Fairview. Their son, Samuel, was also a very popular preacher and the father of the famous preacher, Jonas Harley, who died only a few years ago.

"Their son, Benjamin, was also a preacher. They were all farmers and mechanics.

"I have now written a very long letter, but, after all, only a very short and incomplete sketch of a large and interesting family. I would have material enough to fill several sheets, but while you did not define your request minutely I did not know exactly what you wanted. Whether merely history or genealogy, therefore, I have tried to give a little of both.

"Would be pleased to hear of its coming safe to hand and whether it is what you wanted.

"While I know I could not write a complete or comprehensive sketch, I confined myself wholly to the earliest or remotest part, which perhaps no one else could have done at this time. But while I brought the history down to the third generation and gave all the names and connections of that third generation, I think any descendant that cares might trace their lineage that far back. You will excuse the crippled hand and bad handwriting, for I am 78 years old, my fingers are stiff and my hands are not steady any more. A few years ago I would not have recognized this as my handwriting.

"Respectfully yours,

"ABRAM H. CASSELL."
